Name of course: Bachelor of Arts (Hons) Business Finance and Accounting (Top-Up)

Module Description

[ACC3022-N] INTERNATIONAL ACCOUNTING

This module gives students the confidence to understand and operate within the requirements of International Accounting Reporting Standards. Differences in international accounting and harmonisation are explored. The Conceptual Framework of IFRS is used as a foundation to explore Consolidated Group accounts. The module explores the reporting of complicated events, including mergers and acquisitions and develops knowledge and understanding by analysing and interpreting financial information as well as enabling students to prepare group accounts.

[ACC3017-N] ETHICS, GOVERNANCE AND ACCOUNTABILITY

This module examines the role of ethics, corporate governance, and risk management in the context of business management. Ethics theories will be explored, and a theoretical framework will be applied to deal with ethical problems. Corporate governance functions and mechanisms will be evaluated, and the role of the accountant will be examined in identifying, assessing, controlling, and mitigating risk.

[ECO3007-N] INTERNATIONAL FINANCE

This module examines the financial sector of the economy and introduces students to the principal concepts used in the analysis of financial markets and the operation of financial and monetary policy. It covers three main areas: the operation and development of financial markets and institutions; policy towards financial markets, including regulation, the role of central banks and the operation of monetary and exchange rate policy; and finally the derivatives markets and the management of risks.

[BIN3020-N] UNGRADUATE BUSINESS RESEARCH METHODS TOP UP

The module seeks to develop skills in research methods applicable to business and related areas. It is concerned with those disciplines associated with qualitative and quantitative research methods. The module focus will enable students to plan for an undergraduate level project.

[BIN3023-N] UNDERGRADUATE BUSINESS PROJECT

The module comprises a learner managed business project, the topic area of which will be associated with the learner's programme area of study. The project will provide the learner with an opportunity to demonstrate their capability to undertake an individual piece of research within a business context. The project may be an investigation of a relevant issue of academic interest, an investigation of a practical business issue, or a live problem-solving project.
